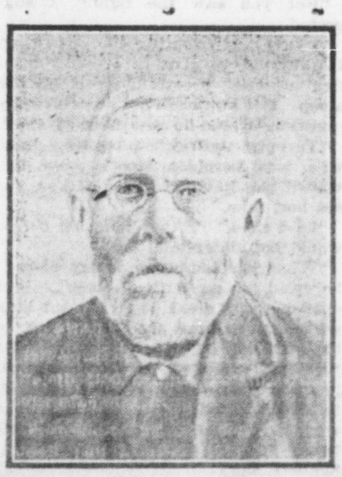
IN THE TOILS OF THE LAW!

Three of the Murderers and Jail Breakers Behind the Bars.

Green, Dillen and Henderson Captured on the Krider Farm Near Flemington--Brought to Bellefonte Tuesday Night.

STIRRING INCIDENTS OF THE CAPTURE.

Bellefonte was stirred from centre to circumference Friday evening by the bold and successful escape of five prisoners from the Centre County jail who after severely beating the turnkey, Jerry Condo



JERRY CONDO,
The faithful turnkey who was so brutally murdered.

took his keys from him and boldly walked out the front door. Nothing so sensational has occurred in Bellefonte for many a day and the excitement created was intense. In a few minutes after the escape was made the streets in the vicinity of the jail were crowded with excited people and the wildest kind of rumors were afloat: The men who escaped are William Dillon, Ira Green, Dominic Constance, George Henderson and George Livingston.

THE ESCAPE.

The escape of these men has never been surpassed for boldness and daring in the history of criminal annals. Bill Dillon and Ira Green were undoubtedly the ringleaders in the daring undertaking. These men were confined in a steel cell No 8 on the second floor of the jail. Next to them were the Italian, Dominic Constance and George Henderson in steel cell No 7. They had evidently been planning this event for some time. Dillon and Green had secreted in their cell a butcher knife which they had filed into a saw and by means of that they sawed the upper hinge of their door, and forcing the door back got out into the corridor. Arming themselves with an iron bar taken from their bed they secreted themselves in the bath room located on the lower floor and near the main entrance to jail.

It is the habit of turnkey Jerry Condo to make the rounds, about quarter past eight every evening and see that everything is secure and lock those in their cells who are allowed the liberty of the corridor during the day. Promptly on time Condo entered the jail accompanied by Ed McCulley "a trusty" who is allowed out during the day time and who takes care of the sheriff's horses. McCulley was in advance of Condo and near the top of the stairs leading to the second tier of cells. Condo was just at the foot of the stairs when suddenly Dillon and Green, who are both big men, rushed out of the bath room and struck the turnkey down, raining blow after blow on the old man's head. McCulley stood at the top of the stairs stunned and to frightened to offer resistance and if he had would have probably been killed for his trouble by the now thoroughly desperate men. Seizing the keys from the turnkey they ran up stairs and unlocked the cell No 7 in which Constance and Henderson were confined and setting them at liberty ran down stairs unlocked the front door of the jail proper and made their exit through the front door of the residence. Several small boys were playing in the vicinity and they saw the men run out. They ran up High street on the north side of the jail and stopped just in front of the residence of James Ott and began to parley which way they should go. Mrs. Ott and her daughters heard the men talking but of course did not know they were escaped prisoners. Finally they ran out past the cemetery. They passed the residence of Thos. Faxon and some of the family sitting on the porch called to them. They were also seen passing the Beaver farm and that was the last heard of them.

THE ALARM SENT OUT.

In the meantime there was great excitement at the jail. Only three prisoners remained having refused to take advantage of the opportunity to escape. It was a moment of great excitement. There was none of the officials or members of the sheriff's family about the jail except the poor turnkey and he was weltering in his own blood.

A band concert was in progress in front of the Bush House and Deputy Sheriff Jackson with the greater portion of the towns population was there. Sheriff Taylor was on his way home from Gettysburg with Company B. The sheriff's family had not returned from a picnic which they were attending at Hecla Park. No one was in the Building when the escaped prisoners ran out. McCulley "the trusty" ran to the front of the jail and yelled murder! police! Geo. H. Kline, of Oak Hall, one of the prisoners, ran to the telephone and told the exchange to call up a doctor right away and send him up to the jail. Dr. Feidt and Dr. Seibert immediately answered the summons meanwhile Mrs. Abe Jackson and Mrs. Frank Baney, both of East High street, hearing the alarm ran over and rendered all the assistance they could to the injured turnkey.

SHERIFF JACKSON ON THE SCENE.

Sheriff Jackson was standing in front of the Bush House when some one asked him whether it was true that Condo had been killed and four prisoners had escaped. This was his first intimation that anything was wrong. He at once hastened to the jail where he found everything confusion and a throng of people gathered. The telephone wires were kept busy for sometime sending the news of the escape broadcast over the country. Possee's were organized and sent in every direction and a description of the escaped prisoners. The County Commissioners at once signified that they would offer a suitable reward. Everything possible was done but no news was received from the fleeing men.

JERRY CONDO'S INJURIES.

George Kline, a prisoner, with the assistance of another, gathered Condo up and carried him into the kitchen of the jail. Later he was taken to his room on the second floor. The doctors say there was no less than fifteen deep cuts on his head, five of his ribs were broken and his skull fractured. The assault on Condo was unusually brutal. The lower corridor walls were splattered with blood and great pools of it stood on the floor. The imprint of the old mans hands were on the sides of the door leading out into the residence part.

$800 REWARD OFFERED!

The county commissioners then offered the following rewards: William Dillen $250, Ira Green $250, Dominic Constance $100, George Henderson $100, George Livingston $100, making $800 in all.

THE MEN AND THEIR RECORDS.

At least three of the men who escaped from Fort Taylor Friday night are unusually desperate characters.

CAPT. TAYLOR ARRIVES HOME.

Captain Hugh S. Taylor and Company B., arrived home from Gettysburg Saturday on the 9:53 train. The Captain heard the news in regard to the escape before he reached Tyrone. Immediately on reaching Bellefonte he proceeded to get busy in his official capacity of sheriff. He organized forty men from Company B, in details of ten and sent them out in every direction to scour the country.

TURNKEY CONDO PASSES AWAY.

Another chapter has been added to the terrible tragedy in the Centre County Jail! Jeremiah Condo the faithful turnkey is dead. Death came to relieve him from his sufferings Sunday morning at 1 o'clock and thus a foul murder is added to the crimes which the five prisoners will have to answer for.

Condo never regained consciousness but gradually sank away. He suffered from a compound fracture of the skull. His scalp was literally cut into shreds and a frightful bruise on his left side indicates that he had either been kicked or jumped upon. Mrs. Condo and daughter, Ida were at his bedside until he passed away.

Undertaker Frank Naginey was called in and the remains were prepared for burial. All day Sunday up until 1 o'clock Monday they reposed in a beautiful casket in the south parlor and hundreds of people called to take a last look at the poor turnkey.

The remains were taken to Spring Mills Monday afternoon on the 2:00 train and the funeral services were held from his residence on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment at Spring Mills.

Jeremiah Irvin Condo was born at Penn Hall, Centre county, and was aged 61 years, 6 months and 2 days. For 32 years prior to his coming to Bellefonte to act as turnkey under Sheriff Taylor he had been a resident of Spring Mills. For many years he was engaged at his trade as a blacksmith and later as a carpet weaver. He was a member of the Methodist church and during the civil war served in Co D, 148th regiment, commanded by Gen. James A. Beaver. He was a faithful soldier and every gathering of old soldiers found him an eager and interested attendant. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. McIlnay, of Spring Mills.

The dead man is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Katherine Runkle, a sister of Jacob Runkle formerly of this place; and the following children: Sallie, wife of Robert Sweetwood, of Centre Hall; Maggie, wife of R. U. Bitner, of Spring Mills; Ida at home and Jerry of Orangeville, Ill.

He also leaves two sisters and three brothers namely Ex-Sheriff John P. Condo, of Sunbury, James of Penn Hall; Jonas, of Hublersburg; Lott, of Belleville; Mrs. Harriet Koch, of State College; Mary, wife of James Roush, of Aaronsburg.

Jeremiah Condo was a faithful, honest, industrious fellow and his death is a sad blow not only to his family but a host of other friends who had been won to him by his kind, genial manner.

BLOOD HOUNDS SENT FOR.

Sunday the sheriff acting for the Commissioners sent to Butler, Pa., for blood hounds. It will be remembered that blood hounds aided very materially in the capture of the Biddle brothers a year or so ago near Pittsburg, they having escaped from the Allegheny county jail. The blood hounds however failed to arrive.

THE DEATH DEALING IRON BAR FOUND

The iron bars stained with blood which Green and Dillon so murderously used on Turnkey Condo were found Saturday morning lying along the wall on the north side of the jail near the stable. There was one iron bar which had been wrenched from a bed steal and was 20 inches long by ½ inch thick wrapped in a stocking. Then there was another piece of iron which looks like the hinge off a door.

CONSTANCE CAPTURED AT BEDFORD.

Dominic Constance, the Italian, who escaped with four others from the Centre County jail on last Friday night is in custody of the sheriff of Bedford County. This is settled beyond doubt as word received here states that he has made a full confession, giving the entire details of the plot which cost Turnkey Condo his life. Footsore and weary, without shoes and his clothes half torn off he was picked up by the authorities of Bedford county just outside the town of Bedford. For awhile he denied his identity but at last he broke down and confessed all.

He stated that the plot to escape had been planned several weeks ago. He blames the killing on Green and Dillen and says he had nothing to do with that. He said that after they had escaped the plan was for Dillen to go to Philadelphia; Green to his mother's home at Runville; Livingston to New York; and Henderson and himself to Pittsburg. He says he separated from Henderson at Saxton, Pa.

A FALSE CLUE RUN DOWN.

Monday evening great excitement was created here by a telephone message to the sheriff stating that two men answering the description of the jail breakers Green and Dillen were on board a fast freight train enroute from Lock Haven to Tyrone. The story went so far as to say that they were heavily armed and had the train under control. The message said that they would pass through Millesburg at 11:30. Sheriff Taylor and a possee went to Milesburg and intercepted the train but there was no one on board.

Hundreds of people stood in the Public square in front of the Court House until long after midnight waiting for the return of the sheriff.

THE STORY OF THE CAPTURE.

After four days of continuous pursuit three of the five outlaws who escaped from the Centre County Jail are at last safely behind the bars at Fort Taylor, and a fourth is in jail at Bedford awaiting the arrival of some one to identify him although he has confessed that he is Dominic Constance, the Italian.

The three men Green, Henderson and Dillen were captured near the Flemington bridge Tuesday afternoon about five o'clock by Atwood Harvey, William Kinley, Samuel Bowes, Randolph Stiver, Elmer Flanagan and two young men named Dauberman and Desham, all of Flemington. These men had not been hunting for the prisoners until they learned that they had been chased into the swamp on the Krider farm and then with hundreds of others from the surrounding country they hastened to the scene.

Dick Taylor and his possee had been hot on the trail of the fleeing jail breakers since Sunday afternoon. The first reliable clue was received from a man named Lucas at whose farm house three men stopped Sunday morning to buy some bread. They then started for the mountains and Dick Taylor with John, Jim and Sammy Morrison, Tom Caldwell and Clarence Daley started in hot pursuit armed with Krag-Jorgensen guns. They chased their prey clear over the Snow Shoe mountains to Cato and back again into Marsh Creek. Daley was their guide and he knew every inch of the country as he was born and raised at Romola and is a son of John A. Daley. The chase was a close and exciting one. Often they were within seventy-five feet of the outlaws. They would come upon places where they had built fire and cooked a meal. At last on Tuesday noon they had them tracked into a swampy woods on the Krider farm, a mile and a half from Flemington. Word was telephoned to Bellefonte and Lieut Garbrick, Roger Bayard and William Brown left on the 1.25 train Tuesday for Beech Creek. Hundreds of others were drawn to the scene from Howard, Beech Creek, Mill Hall and Flemington.

Gradually the net was formed and slowly it closed in on the jail breakers. The men saw that they were being hemmed in. Previous to this they had stopped in the woods and shaved themselves. They then evidently decided that their only way to escape was to cross the river to the other side and they stopped at a farm house and asked a lady how they could get across the river. She told them they could cross over the covered bridge at Flemington. They made a break for the bridge and just as they came out in the open they ran into the arms of the Flemington people. They were ordered to surrender and seeing that the jig was up they made no resistance. They were placed aboard a trolley car and taken to the Lock Haven jail. County Detective Joseph Rightnour and others from the Bellefonte possee hastened to the jail and positively identified the men. The word was telephoned to Bellefonte and Officer Geo. Jodon and other's were sent to Mill Hall to bring the prisoners to Bellefonte.

In the meantime the news of their capture had spread all over the town and every train that came in drew thousands of people to the station. It was expected that Sheriff Hugh S. Taylor would bring the Italian on the 8:16 but when the train pulled in he was empty handed. The sheriff of Bedford county was to have brought Constance to Huntingdon but when Sheriff Taylor reached that place he found a message saying that the Bedford county authorities would not give him up until he was identified and the reward paid. As Sheriff Taylor desired to attend the funeral of Turnkey Condo at Spring Mills Wednesday he had to return home. Constance will probably be brought here today. He was arrested Monday by Pennsylvania Railroad Detective C. D. Begle at Bedford for riding a freight train. The report that he confessed that he killed Condo is said to be untrue.

The crowd at the Central station was so great that Sheriff Taylor determined to have the train stopped at the crossing on the Jacksonville road. Three carriages were in waiting there and guarded by a large force the prisoners were rapidly driven to Bellefonte and lodged in jail. It is estimated that 2000 people were surrounding the jail when the prisoners arrived and no effort was made to molest them. The three prisoners were placed in cells on the lower floor of the jail and are guarded night and day.

Cell No. 8 that Green and Dillen Escaped from.

THE PRISONERS STORY.

On the train up from Mill Hall Green was handcuffed to Dective Rightnour and Dillen and Henderson were handcuffed together. The men took their arrest calmly and laughed and sang all the way up. Green was the most talkative of the lot. From their conversation it was gathered that they separated from the Italian immediately on leaving the jail. Livingston was with them until Sunday when they left him in the woods. They had nothing to eat except a loaf of bread bought on Sunday and berries they gathered in the mountains from the time they escaped until their capture. Up until Monday they were not ten miles from Bellefonte. It was their intention to catch a freight train and escape into New York state and eventually to Canada. Coming up in the train someone said to Green you have placed a rope around your neck. He answered "what do I care, a man has only once to die."

The farm on which the men were captured belongs to a man named Krider but is occupied by Mrs. C. D. Geary. The men were almost exhausted by their long tramp.

convinced me that whatever else had been dusted in this room this shelf had not. The accumulation of days if not of months was visible from one end to the other of its unrelieved surface save where the handkerchief had laid, and—the greatest discovery yet—where five clear spots just to the left of the center showed where some man's finger tips had rested. Nothing but the pressure of finger tips could have caused just the appearance presented by these spots. By scrutinizing them closely I could even tell where the thumb had rested and at once foresaw the possibility of determining by means of these marks both the size and shape of the hand which had left behind it so neat and unmistakable a clew.

Wonderful! But what did it all mean? Why should a man rest his finger tips on this out of the way shelf? Had he done so in an effort to balance himself for a look up the chimney? No, for then the marks made by his fingers would have extended to the edge of the shelf, whereas these were in the middle of it. Their shape, too, was round, not oblong. Hence the pressure had come from above, and—ah! I had it. These impressions in the dust of the shelf were just such as would be made by a person steadying himself for a close look at the old picture. And this accounted also for the overturned chair and for the handkerchief used as a duster. Some one's interest in this picture had been greater than mine; some one who was either very near-sighted or whose temperament was such that only the closest inspection would satisfy an aroused curiosity.

This gave me an idea, or, rather, impressed upon me the necessity of preserving the outline of these telltale marks while they were still plain to the eye. Taking out my penknife, I lightly ran the point of my sharpest blade around each separate impression till I had fixed them for all time in the well worn varnish of the mahogany.

This done, my thoughts recurred to the question already raised. What was there in this old picture to arouse such curiosity in one bent on evil if not fresh from a hideous crime? I have said before that the picture as a picture was worthless, a mere faded sketch, fit only for lumbering up some old garret. Then wherein lay its charm, a charm which I myself had felt, though not to this extent? It was useless to conjecture. A fresh difficulty had been added to my task by this puzzling discovery, but difficulties only increased my interest. It was with an odd feeling of elation that, in a further examination of this room, I came upon two additional facts equally odd and irreconcilable.

One was the presence of a penknife, with the file blade open, on a small table under the window marked by the loosened shutter. Scattered about it were some filings which shone as the light from my lantern fell upon them, but which were so fine as to call for a magnifying glass to make them out. The other was in connection with a closet not far from the great bed. It was an empty closet, so far as the hooks went and the two great drawers which I found standing half open at its back, but in the middle of the floor lay an overturned candelabrum similar to the one below, but with its prisms scattered and its one candle crushed and battered out of all shape on the blackened boards. If upset while alight, the foot which had stamped upon it in a wild endeavor to put out the flames had been a frenzied one. Now, by whom had this frenzy been shown and when? Within the hour? I could detect no smell of smoke. At some former time, then—say on the day of the bridal?

The penknife and the filings on the table

Glancing from the broken candle at my feet to the one giving its last sputter in the tumbler on the dressing table, I owned myself perplexed.

Surely no ordinary explanation fitted these extraordinary and seemingly contradictory circumstances.

CHAPTER IV.

I AM in some ways hypersensitive. Among my other weaknesses I have a wholesome dread of ridicule, and this is probably why I failed to press my theory on the captain when he appeared and even forbore to mention the various small matters which had so attracted my attention. If he and the experienced men who came with him saw suicide and nothing but suicide in this lamentable shooting of a bride of two weeks, then it was not for me to suggest a deeper crime, especially as one of the latter eyed me with open scorn when I proposed to accompany them upstairs into the room where the light had been seen burning. No, I would keep my discoveries to myself, or at least forbear to mention them till I found the captain alone, asking nothing at this juncture but permission to remain in the house till Mr. Jeffrey arrived.

I had been told that an officer had gone for this gentleman, and when I heard the sound of wheels in front I made a rush for the door in my anxiety to catch a glimpse of him, but it was a woman who alighted.

As this woman was in a state of great agitation, one of the men hastened down to offer his arm. As she took it I asked Hibbard, who had suddenly reappeared upon the scene, who she was.

He said that she was probably the sister of the woman who lay inside, upon which I remembered that this lady, under the name of Miss Tuttle—she was but half sister to Miss Moore—had been repeatedly mentioned by the reporters in the accounts of the wedding before mentioned as a person of superior attainments and magnificent beauty.

This did not take from my interest, and, flinging decorum to the winds, I approached as near as possible to the threshold which she must soon cross. As I did so I was astonished to hear the strains of Uncle David's organ still pealing from the opposite side of the way. This at a moment so serious and while matters of apparent consequence were taking place in the house to which he had himself directed the attention of the police struck me as carrying stoicism to the extreme. Not very favorably impressed by this display of open if not insulting indifference on the part of the sole remaining Moore, an indifference which did not appear quite natural even in a man of his morbid eccentricity, I resolved to know more of this old man and, above all, to make myself fully acquainted with the exact relations which had existed between him and his unhappy niece.

Meanwhile Miss Tuttle had stepped within the circle of light cast by our lanterns.

I have never seen a finer woman or one whose features displayed a more heartrending emotion. This called for respect, and I for one endeavored to show it by withdrawing into the background. But I soon stepped forward again. My desire to understand her was too great, the impression made by her bearing too complex, to be passed over lightly by one on the lookout for a key to the remarkable tragedy before us.

Meanwhile her lips had opened with the cry:

"My sister! Where is my sister?"

The captain made a hurried movement toward the rear and then, with the laudable intention doubtless of preparing her for the ghastly sight which awaited her, returned and opened a way for her into the drawing room. But she was not to be turned aside from her course. Passing him by, she made directly for the library, which she entered with a bound. Struck by her daring, we all crowded up behind her and, curious brutes that we were, grouped ourselves in a semicircle about the doorway as she faltered toward her sister's outstretched form and fell on her knees beside it. Her involuntary shriek and the fierce recoil she made as her eyes fell on the long white ribbon trailing over the floor from her sister's wrist struck me as voicing the utmost horror of which the human soul is capable. It was as though her very soul were pierced. Something in the fact itself, something in the appearance of this snowy ribbon tied to the scarce whiter wrist, seemed to pluck at the very root of her being, and when her glance, in traveling its length, lighted on the death dealing weapon at its end she cringed in such apparent anguish that we looked to see her fall in a swoon or break out into delirium. We were correspondingly startled when she suddenly burst forth with this word of stern command:

"Untie that knot! Why do you leave that dreadful thing fast to her? Untie it, I say! It is killing me. I cannot bear the sight." And from trembling she passed to shuddering till her whole body shook convulsively.

The captain, with much consideration, drew back the hand he had impulsively stretched toward the ribbon.

"No, no," he protested; "we cannot do that. We can do nothing till the coroner comes. It is necessary that he should see her just as she was found. Besides, Mr. Jeffrey has a right to the same privilege. We expect him any moment."

The beautiful head of the woman before us shook involuntarily, but her lips made no protest. I doubt if she possessed the power of speech at that moment. A change, subtle, but quite perceptible, had taken place in her emotions at mention of her sister's husband, and, though she exerted herself to remain calm, the effort seemed too much for her strength. Anxious to hide this evidence of weakness, she rose impetuously, and then we saw how tall she was, how the long lines of her cloak became her and what a glorious creature she was altogether.

"It will kill him," she groaned in a deep inward voice. Then, with a certain forced haste and in a tone of surprise which to my ear had not quite a natural ring she called aloud on her who could no longer either listen or answer:

"Oh, Veronica, Veronica! What cause had you for death? And why do we find you lying here in a spot you so feared and detested?"

"Don't you know?" insinuated the captain, with a mild persuasiveness, such as he was seldom heard to use. "Do you mean that you cannot account for your sister's violent end, you, who have lived with her—or so I have been told—ever since her marriage with Mr. Jeffrey?"

"Yes."

Keen and clear the word rang out, fierce in its keenness and almost too clear to be in keeping with the half choked tones with which she added: "I know that she was not happy, that she never has been happy since the shadow which this room suggests fell upon her marriage. But how could I so much as dream that her dread of the past or her fear of the future would drive her to suicide, and in this place of all places! Had I done so—had I imagined in the least degree that she was affected to this extent—do you think that I would have left her for one instant alone? None of us knew that she contemplated death. She had no appearance of it; she laughed when I"—

What had she been about to say? The captain seemed to wonder, and after waiting in vain for the completion of her sentence, he quietly suggested:

"You have not finished what you had to say, Miss Tuttle."

She started and seemed to come back from some remote region of thought into which she had wandered. "I don't know—I forget," she stammered, with a heartbroken sigh. "Poor Veronica! Wretched Veronica! How shall I ever tell him? How, how can we ever prepare him?"

The captain took advantage of this reference to Mr. Jeffrey to ask where that gentleman was. The young lady did not seem eager to reply, but when pressed, answered, though somewhat mechanically, that it was impossible for her to say; Mr. Jeffrey had many friends, with any one of whom he might be enjoying a social evening.

"But it is far past midnight now," remarked the captain. "Is he in the habit of remaining out late?"

"Sometimes," she faintly admitted. "Two or three times since his marriage he has been out till 1."

Were there other causes for the young bride's evident disappointment and misery besides the one intimated? There certainly was some excuse for thinking so.

Possibly some one of us may have shown his doubts in this regard, for the woman before us suddenly broke forth with this vehement assertion:

"Mr. Jeffrey was a loving husband to my sister—a very loving husband," she emphasized. Then, growing desperately pale, she added, "I have never known a better man," and stopped.

Some hidden anguish in this cry, some self consciousness in this pause, suggested to me a possibility which I was glad to see ignored by the captain in his next question.

"When did you see your sister last?" he asked. "Were you at home when she left her husband's house?"

"Alas!" she murmured. Then, seeing that a more direct answer was expected of her, she added with as little appearance of effort as possible: "I was at home, and I heard her go out. But I had no idea that it was for any purpose other than to join some social gathering."

"Dressed this way?"

The captain pointed to the floor, and her eyes followed. Certainly Mrs. Jeffrey was not appareled for an evening company. As Miss Tuttle realized the trap into which she had been betrayed her words rushed forth and tripped each other up.

"I did not notice. She often wore black. It became her. My sister was eccentric."

Worse, worse than useless. Some slips cannot be explained away. Miss Tuttle seemed to realize that this was one of them, for she paused abruptly, with the words half finished on her tongue. Yet her attitude commanded respect, and I for one was ready to accord it to her.

Certainly such a woman was not to be seen every day, and if her replies lacked candor, there was a nobility in her presence which gave the lie to any doubt. At least, that was the effect she produced on me. Whether or not her interrogator shared my feeling I could not so readily determine, for his attention as well as mine was suddenly diverted by the cry which now escaped her lips.

"Her watch! Where is her watch? It is gone! I saw it on her breast, and it's gone. It hung just—just where"—

"Wait!" cried one of the men who had been peering about the floor. "Is this it?"

He held aloft a small object blazing with jewels.

"Yes," she gasped, trying to take it.

But the officer gave it to the captain instead.

"It must have slipped from her as she fell," remarked the latter, after a cursory examination of the glittering trinket. "The pin by which she attached it to her dress must have been insecurely fastened." Then quickly and with a sharp look at Miss Tuttle, "Do you know if this was considered an accurate timepiece?"

"Yes. Why do you ask? Is it"—

"Look!" He held it up with the face toward us. The hands stood at thirteen minutes past 7. "The hour and the moment when it struck the floor," he declared. "And consequently the hour and the moment when Mrs. Jeffrey fell," finished Durbin.

Miss Tuttle said nothing, only gasped.

"Valuable evidence," quoth the captain, putting the watch in his pocket. Then, with a kind look at her, called forth by the sight of her misery, he added, "Does this hour agree with the time of her leaving the house?"

"I cannot say. I think so. It was some time before or after 7. I don't remember the exact minute."

"It would take fifteen for her to walk here. Did she walk?"

"I do not know. I didn't see her leave. My room is at the back of the house."

"You can say if she left alone or in the company of her husband?"

"Mr. Jeffrey was not with her."

"Was Mr. Jeffrey in the house?"

"He was not."

This last negative was faintly spoken.

The captain noticed this and ventured upon interrogating her further.

"How long had he been gone?"

Her lips parted; she was deeply agitated, but when she spoke it was coldly and with studied precision.

"Mr. Jeffrey was not at home tonight at all. He has not been in all day."

"Not at home? Did his wife know that he was going to dine out?"

"She said nothing about it."

The captain cut short his questions and in another moment I understood why. A gentleman was standing in the doorway, whose face, once seen, was enough to stop the words on any man's lips. Miss Tuttle saw this gentleman almost as quickly as we did and sank with an involuntary moan to her knees.

It was Francis Jeffrey come to look upon his dead bride. Breathlessly we awaited his first words. His eye, which was fixed on the prostrate body of his bride, did not yield up its secret. When he moved and came to where she lay and caught his first sight of the ribbon and the pistol attached to it, the most experienced among us were baffled as to the nature of his feelings and thoughts. One thing alone was patent to all. He had no wish to touch this woman whom he had so lately sworn to cherish. His eyes devoured her, he shuddered and strove several times to speak, and, though kneeling by her side, he did not reach forth his hand nor did he let a tear fall on the appealing features so pathetically turned upward as if to meet his look.

Suddenly he leaped to his feet.

"Must she stay here?" he demanded, looking about for the person most in authority.

The captain answered by a question:

"How do you account for her being here at all? What explanation have you, as her husband, to give for this strange suicide of your wife?"

For reply, Mr. Jeffrey, who was an exceptionally handsome man, drew forth a small slip of crumpled paper, which he immediately handed over to the speaker.

"Let her own words explain," said he. "I found this scrap of writing in our upstairs room when I returned home tonight. She must have written it just before—before"—

A smothered groan filled up the break, but it did not come from his lips, which were fixed and set, but from those of the woman who crouched among us. Did he catch this expression of sorrow from one of whose presence he as yet had given no token of recognizing? He did not seem to. His eye was on the captain, who was slowly reading, by the light of a lantern held in a detective's hand, the almost illegible words which Mr. Jeffrey had just said were his wife's last communication.

Will they seem as pathetic to the eye as they did to the ear in that room of awesome memories and present death?

I find that I do not love you as I thought I did. I cannot live, knowing this to be so. I pray God that you may forgive me. VERONICA.

A gasp from the figure in the corner; then silence. We were glad to hear the captain's voice again.

"A woman's heart is a great mystery," he remarked, with a short glance at Mr. Jeffrey.

It was a sentiment we could all echo, for he to whom she had alluded in these few lines as one she could not love was a man whom most women would consider the embodiment of all that was admirable and attractive.

That one woman so regarded him was apparent to all. If ever the heart spoke in a human face it spoke in that of Miss Tuttle as she watched her sister's husband struggling for composure above the prostrate form of her who but a few hours previous had been the envy of all the fashionable young women in Washington. I found it hard to fix my attention on the next question, interesting and valuable as every small detail was likely to prove in case my theory of this crime should ever come to be looked on as the true one.

"How came you to search here for the wife who had written you this vague and far from satisfactory farewell? I see no hint in these lines of the place where she intended to take her life."

"No! No!" Even this strong man shrank from this idea and showed a very natural recoil as his glances flew about the ill omened room and finally rested on the fireside over which so repellent a mystery hung in impenetrable shadow. "She said nothing of her intentions; nothing! But the man who came for me told me where she was to be found. He was waiting at the door of my house. He had been on a search for me up and down the town. We met on the stoop."

The captain accepted this explanation without cavil. I was glad he did. But to me the affair showed inconsistencies which I secretly felt it to be my especial duty to unravel.

CHAPTER V.

NO further opportunity was afforded me that night for studying the three leading characters in the remarkable drama I saw unfolding before me. A task was assigned me by the captain which took me from the house, and I missed the next scene—the arrival of the coroner. But I repaid myself for this loss in a way I thought justified by the importance of my own theory and the evident necessity there was of collecting each and every point of evidence which could give coloring to the charge, in the event of this crime coming to be looked on at headquarters as one of murder.

Observing that a light was still burning in Uncle David's domicile, I crossed to his door and rang the bell. I was answered by the deep and prolonged howl of a dog, soon cut short by his master's amiable greeting. This latter was a surprise to me. I had heard so often of Mr. Moore's churlishness as a host that I had expected some rebuff. But I encountered no such tokens of hostility. His brow was smooth and his smile cheerfully condescending. Indeed, he appeared anxious to have me enter, and cast an indulgent look at Rudge, whose irrepressible joy at this break in the monotony of his existence was tinged with a very evident dread of offending his master. Interested anew, I followed this man of contradictory impulses into the room toward which he led me.

The time has now come for a more careful description of this peculiar man. Mr. Moore was tall and of that refined spareness of shape which suggests the scholar. Yet he had not the scholar's eye. On the contrary, his regard was quick, if not alert, and while it did not convey actual malice or ill will it roused in the spectator an uncomfortable feeling not altogether easy to analyze. He wore his iron gray locks quite long, and to this distinguishing idiosyncrasy, as well as to his invariable custom of taking his dog with him wherever he went, was due the interest always shown in him by street urchins. On account of his whimsicalities he had acquired the epithet of Uncle David among them, despite his aristocratic connections and his gentlemanlike bearing. His clothes formed no exception to the general air of individuality which marked him. They were of different cut from those of other men, and in this as in many other ways he was a law to himself; notably so in the following instance. He kept one day of the year religiously, and kept it always in the same way. Long years before he had been blessed with a wife who both understood and loved him. He had never forgotten this fact, and once a year, presumably on the anniversary of her death, it was his custom to go to the cemetery where she lay and to spend the whole day under the shadow of the stone he had raised to her memory. No matter what the weather, no matter what the condition of his own health, he was always to be seen in this spot, at the hour of 7, leaning against the shaft on which the name of his wife was written, eating his supper in the company of his dog.

So much for one oddity which may stand as a sample of many others.

One glance at the room into which he ushered me showed why he cherished so marked a dislike for visitors. It was bare to the point of discomfort, and had it not been for a certain quaintness in the shape of the few articles to be seen there I should have experienced a decided feeling of repulsion, so pronounced was the contrast between this poverty stricken interior and the polished bearing of its owner. He, I am sure, could have shown no more elevated manners if he had been doing the honors of a palace. The organ, with the marks of home construction upon it, was the only object visible which spoke of luxury or even comfort.

But enough of these possibly uninteresting details. I did not dwell on them myself except in a vague way and while waiting for him to open the conversation. This he did as soon as he saw that I had no intention of speaking first.

"And did you find any one in the old house?" he asked.

Keeping him well under my eye, I replied with intentional brusqueness:

"She has gone there once too often!"

The stare he gave me was that of an actor who feels that some expression of surprise is expected from him.

"She?" he repeated. "Whom can you possibly mean by she?"

The surprise I expressed at this bold attempt at ingenuousness was better simulated than his, I hope.

"You don't know!" I exclaimed. "Can you live directly opposite a place of such remarkable associations and not interest yourself in who goes in and out of its deserted doors?"

"I don't sit in my front window," he peevishly returned.

I let my eye roam toward a chair standing suspiciously near the very window he had designated.

"But you saw the light?" I suggested.

"I saw that from the doorstep when I went out to give Rudge his usual five minutes' breathing spell on the stoop. But you have not answered my question—whom do you mean by she?"

"Veronica Jeffrey," I replied. "She who was Veronica Moore. She has visited this haunted house of hers for the last time."

"Last time!" Either he could not or would not understand me.

"What has happened to my niece?" he cried, rising with an energy that displaced the great dog and sent him, with hanging head and trailing tail, to his own special sleeping place under the table. "Has she run upon a ghost in those dismal apartments? You interest me greatly. I did not think she would ever have the pluck to visit this house again after what happened at her wedding."

"She has had the pluck," I assured him, "and, what is more, she has had enough of it not only to re-enter the house, but to re-enter it alone. At least, such is the present inference. Had you been blessed with more curiosity and made more frequent use of the chair so conveniently placed for viewing the opposite house, you might have been in a position to correct this inference. It would help the police materially to know positively that she had no companion in her fatal visit."

"Fatal?" he repeated, running his finger inside his neckband, which suddenly seemed to have grown too tight for comfort. "Can it be that my niece has been frightened to death in that old place? You alarm me."

He did not look alarmed, but then he was not of an impressible nature. Yet he was of the same human clay as the rest of us, and, if he knew no more of this occurrence than he tried to make out, could not be altogether impervious to what I had to say next.

"You have a right to be alarmed," I assented. "She was not frightened to death, yet is she lying dead on the library floor." Then, with a glance at the windows about me, I added lightly, "I take it that a pistol shot delivered over there could not be heard in this room."

He sank rather melodramatically into his seat, yet his face and form did not lose that sudden assumption of dignity which I had observed in him ever since my entrance into the house.

"I am overwhelmed by this news," he remarked. "She has shot herself? Why?"

"I did not say that she had shot herself," I carefully repeated. "Yet the facts point that way and Mr. Jeffrey accepts the suicide theory without question."

"Ah, Mr. Jeffrey is there!"

"Most certainly; he was sent for at once."

"And Miss Tuttle? She came with him of course?"

"She came, but not with him. She is very fond of her sister."

"I must go over at once!" he cried, leaping again to his feet and looking about for his hat. "It is my duty to make them feel at home; in short, to Counterpanes Displace Blankets.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company owns and operates the sleeping cars in service on its various lines, and has just inaugurated an innovation which will appeal to all sleeping car travelers.

On its "Southwest Limited" trains between Chicago and Kansas City white counterpanes or bed-spreads have replaced the heavy woolen blankets which have heretofore been in evidence twelve months in each year, much to the discomfort in hot weather of sleeping car patrons.

Blankets will be held in reserve and within reach for cool nights.

This innovation is calculated to not only add to the comfort of passengers, but it will appeal to all who like a bed that is inviting in appearance.

Evening Reveries.

Home is a place of refuge. Tossed day by day upon the rough and stormy ocean of life, harassed by worldly cares and perplexed by worldly inquietudes, the weary spirit yearns after repose. It seeks and finds it in the refuge which home supplies. Here the mind is at rest; the heart's turmoil becomes quiet, and the spirit basks in the peaceful delights of domestic love.

In front of every young man and maiden there are always two paths and if the young people who read this column, whose feet are lingering in soft green meadows and flowery paths, will pause and consider most earnestly the two roads before moving onward and choose the one that truth and reason tells them leads to honor, success and happiness, then they have wisely choosen. The other road is too well known to need description. At the end of this road you find only ruined hopes.

A woman of true intelligence is a blessing at home, in her circle of friends, and in society. Wherever she goes she carries with her a healthgiving influence. There is a beautiful harmony about her character that at once inspires a respect which soon runs into love. The influence of such a woman upon society is of the most salutary kind. She strengthens right principles in the virtuous, incites the selfish and indifferent to good actions and gives to even and light and frivolous a taste for food more substantial than the frothy gossip with which they seek to secrete their minds.

Even as the sunbeam is composed of millions of minute rays, the home life must be constituted of little tendernesses, kind looks, sweet laughter, gentle words, loving counsels, it must not be like the torch blaze of natural excitement which is easily quenched, but like the serene, chastened light which burns as safely in the dry east wind as in the still atmosphere. Let each bear the other's burdens the while, let each cultivate the natural confidence which is a gift capable of increase and improvement, and soon it will be found that kindness will spring up on every side even so we have seen sweet violets and primroses dispelling the gloom of the gray seaweeds.

Ghastly Centennial Relic.

The bones of the only man who was ever hanged in Potter county will be placed on exhibition at Coudersport at the coming county centennial celebration. This somewhat ghastly yet unique relic is the property of Dr. Charles French, who has loaned the skeleton to the committee on exhibits. The bones are those of a man named Jones, who many years ago was executed there. Some time prior to the execution the condemned man sold his body to a local physician for the purpose of dissection. It was from this doctor that Dr. French present owner, obtained it.

Oldest Couple in the State.

St. Mary's, Elk county, boasts of having as residents, the oldest couple in the state, and possibly in the United States. Their names are Martin and Barbara Wickett. They were born in Bohemia and came to the states 54 years ago. For many years they have lived at St. Mary's and have been married nearly three quarters of a century. The husband is 94 years of age and the wife 92. They are both bright and hopeful, enjoying good health and are likely to live for a number of years yet.

"The Hand That Rocks The Cradle Rules The World."

MOTHER'S love starts a man or woman on the right path. The right remedy at the right time fits a mother for the ordeal. Motherhood is often looked forward to with feelings of great dread by most women. At such a time when she is nervous, dyspeptic, irritable and in need of a uterine tonic—something which will calm the nervous system through the special organs, and a strength builder, she will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription just what is needed. Here is a medicine that has stood the test of a third of a century with approval, in that time it has sold more largely than any other remedy put up specially for women's weaknesses. It is guaranteed by the proprietors not to contain a particle of alcohol—which could only do harm to a sensitive system.

WHY WOMEN SHOULD CONFIDE IN A MAN.

It is much easier for a woman to confide in the average man than in the average woman. She knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. Without a perfect medical understanding there can be no helpful advise, women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has ills and pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly it would not be the part of wisdom to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a woman. There is every reason why she should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century, like Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.

SINGLE AND MARRIED WOMEN

Very often find that it is repugnant to their feelings to consult their family physician. In such a case they can put perfect confidence in Dr. Pierce, who has made such a success in the treatment of women's diseases, for he will give the very best advice possible and without cost. To grow beautiful, healthy and happy should be the desire of every woman. It is then possible to hold a husband and to make home happy and bring contentment to it. In most cases Dr. R. V. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will fit the needs and put the body in healthy condition.

So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer

A $500 REWARD

For women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health, by curing the local womanly diseases which are generally responsible for the failure of the general health. A woman's entire being is centered in her womanly nature. When the delicate womanly organism is attacked by disease; when there is irregularity or a disagreeable drain; when inflammation burns and ulcers gnaw, the general health will reflect the progress of disease, in increasing weakness, nervousness, backache, headache, loss of appetite and sleeplessness.

EDITORIAL.

THE PARTIES CONTRASTED.

The Democratic platform tells what the party would like to do if it had the chance.

The Republican platform tells what the party has done and makes it stand upon its record.

That is the radical difference between platforms and parties in the present campaign.

The Democrats have no record of anything their party has done for the people in fifty years. During all that time it has been the party of opposition and unprogressiveness. It succeeded only in placeing upon the statute books a hermaphrodite tariff law its authors were ashamed of and to nullify which the country immediately replaced the Republican party in power.

It has stood in the way of necessary federal achievements, including the building of the Panama canal and the enactment of a law for reciprocity with Cuba, and has taken the initiative in nothing of importance.

The Democratic party says: "We promise to do."

The Republicas party says: "We have done."

The Democratic party must explain why it didn't do this or that.

The Republican party doesn't have to explain, for success needs no explanation or excuse.

As Ben Tillman says, in a crisis the Democratic party makes a damn fool of itself.

The Republican party doesn't. It does the right thing always.

JUDGE PARKER'S swimming suit may come in handy when he gets swamped in that November tide.

Republican headquarters in New York and Chicago were opened on Monday August 1st and the campaign started off with a rush.

JUDGE PARKER says he is for a gold standard, but so is Roosevelt. Then there are so many other good things that Roosevelt is for, upon which the position of Parker is unknown, that the voter ought to have little difficulty in deciding which he will be for.

BY promptly coughing up a million for the campaign, with a promise of more, Millionaire Davis has proved to the satisfaction of all the managers of the Democratic machinery that he very emphatically is not too old to be a candidate.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION

Of Centre and Clinton Counties Met at Brockerhoff. House

ON MONDAY EVENING

It Was An Enthusiastic Gathering and Arrangements Were Completed for Big Picnic Aug. 18.

BANQUETED BY MR. FRANK WARFIELD

The meeting held at the Brockerhoff House, Bellefonte on Monday evening by the Business Men's Pic-nic Association of Centre and Clinton Counties was a great success not only on account of the completion of the arrangements for the big Business Men's Pic-nic at Hecla Park but also from the fact that there was a large and enthusiastic attendance from both counties and that it was an unusually pleasant and sociable gathering. These meetings are looked forward to each year with increased pleasure by those so fortunate as to be present:

It was a meeting of the executive committee and the sub-committees and was called to order at 5:30 o'clock by President Rittman in room 39 at Brockerhoff House. Secretary J. C. Meyer read the minutes of the previous meeting and called the roll. The following were present: Messrs. J. Calvin Meyer, John D. Sourbeck, Frank Warfield, Hard P. Harris, J. Will Conley, W. Harrison Walker John Bullock, A. C. Mingle, John I. Olewine, Hammond Sechler, all of Bellefonte; Geo. M. Gearheart, G. W. A. McDonald, George W. Mason, J. H. Rothrock, Joseph Haberstroh, C. Fred Brown, H. C. Evans, G. W. Fredericks, P. P. Rittman, George Loder, Philip Sharpless Kift, A. B. Salmon, of Lock Haven; Oscar E. Miles, of Milesburg; Budd Thompson, of Martha; Hayes Stewart, of Island; T. J. Smull, of Mackeyville; C. J. Sigmund, of Salona; S. H. Bennison, of Abdera.

The press was represented as follows: D. I. McNaul, of Lock Haven Democrat; Frank Kinsloe, Express; T. H. Harter, Keystone Gazette; C. R. Kurtz, Centre Democrat; George R. Meek, Democratic Watchman and Earle C. Tuten of the News and Bellefonte Republican.

The finance committee made their report showing $490 raised for amusements and other expenses. There will be no fireworks this year.

Chairman Sourbeck reported that an effort would be made to have Altoona and Williamsport play a game at the Park. There will also be an inter-county game. There will be a bird shooting match between the best teams in the two counties. Any number of teams can enter the contest and the prize is a handsome gun to the winning team.

All stores and business places in the two counties are requested to close but it is not compulsory. The association will furnish closing cards to all business men on application.

George R. Meek reported that in conjunction with A. B. Salmon, of Lock Haven, it was likely that they could arrange a minstrel show for picnic day. Two performances will be given during the day.

Mr. Warfield reported that there would be special trains from Penns Valley and Howard. There will be 25 trains over the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania during the day.

If it rains on Thursday August 18th, it was decided to postpone the picnic until the next day August 19.

After the business of the meeting was finished the guests were all ushered into the dining room where they sat down, thirty-four in number, to a sumptuous repast prepared in Landlord Ray's best style.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Frank Warfield for his splendid entertainment.

Death of McKinley Heaton.

McKinley Heaton, the little five year old son of Emory Heaton, died at the home of his parents near the Nittany Furnace Wednesday morning, July 27 at 6 o'clock. Just a week prior he was struck by an engine while playing along the Nittany Valley road near the Forge school house.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning at ten o'clock. Interment in Fairview Cemetery near Curtins Works.

THE announcement that Parker Cleveland and Bryan will all speak from the same stump during the approaching campaign suggests that it's mighty tough to trot three such able men clear across the continent. But the only place where a stump large enough could be found is in California.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Aug 2, 1904

Many people assembled at the R. R. Station on Thursday evening last, at 6 o'clock, to catch a glimpse of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt upon the event of their mid-summer return to the capital. His speech of acceptance the day before, at Oyster Bay, had given general and genuine satisfaction to all Republicans, for its directness of statement, its sincerity, its modesty, and the manner in which were expressed his own views and the politics, of the Republican party. As usual the President shook hands with the engineers who had brought him safely over the road, and was at once driven to the White House, fragrant with flowers, where dinner was immediately served. Friday many prominent politicians paid their respects, and the campaign being open, considerable information was made public. Senator Proctor of Vermont, who is not at all worried over the strike at is marble quarries, told the President the Green Mountain state would roll up a majority of 25,000; and that Secretary Wilson of the Dept. of Agriculture, and Speaker Cannon, will take the stump about the middle of August. A better choice of speakers for the farmers of Vermont could hardly be made. Proctor, Wilson and Cannon are much alike and are plain, earnest and impressive speakers. Gen. Howard, who also lives in Vermont, told the President that he will speak during this campaign as he did for McKinley in 1896.

A Cabinet meeting was held at 11 o'clock Friday, all the ministers being present except Hay, Taft and Hitchcock. These gentlemen will return to town in season for the important meeting which is to be held next week. Postmaster Gen. Payne appeared to be in excellent health and spirits. He is perfectly confident that Wisconsin will be found in the Republican column. Secretary Shaw will not call upon the national banks for their Government deposits. He has $28,000,000 and thinks that is a good working balance. Secretary Morton discussed with the President who should be made chief of the Bureau of navagation in place of Admiral Taylor who died a few days ago. The names of Robley D. Evans and Capt. Davis have been mentioned in connection with the vacancy. The Secretary has ordered the American fleet, now in European waters, to return home, and it may be expected about Sept. 1. Early in August Secretary Morton contemplates visiting the navy yards, from Norfolk to Portsmouth, N. H. He will make the trip in the Dolphin, and take his family with him.

Nearly every young man of social position in Washington expects to serve two or three years in the National Guard of the District, and reach at least the grade of First Lieutenant. For the past week there has been much activity at the local armories making ready for the encampment at Harper's Ferry, which will continue from August to the 13th. The camp is near the junction of the Shenandoah and Potomac rivers, and there will be an excellent opportunity to learn the art of swimming. The departure of the boys for Virginia reminds your correspondent of a unique incident which he witnessed at the beginning of the war with Spain. Suddenly all the District militia was ordered to go into camp in the grounds of the Soldier's Home, some three miles north of the city. There departure was witnessed by an immense crowd which assembled in the vicinity of the Center Market Armory. There was the usual weeping, kissing and handshaking, for some thought the boys would soon be on the battlefield. They tramped up Seventh street to the grounds of the Home, only to find the gates locked and admittance refused. Finally the old soldier on guard let them inside. There were no preparations for sleeping on the sodden turf; no tents; no beds; nothing to eat. For one night the boys slept under a wet moon with the sky for a blanket, and mosquitoes for companions. The next day they came to town, band playing and flags flying, disgusted and disgruntled. Quite a number of resignations followed. They doubted the wisdom of going to war with officers capable of making war so cruel.

When the late Wm. C. Whitney was Secretary of the Navy, and kept open house on K street, entertaining lavishly, and treating all of his servants very generously as well as kindly remembering the employes of the department over which he presided, people wondered how he made his great fortune and of what it consisted. His wife was a Miss Payne, of Cleveland Ohio, daughter of Judge, and afterwards Senator, Payne, and sister of Col. Oliver Payne, who is a Standard Oil Magnate. Much of the fortune came with the wife. A list of the taxable property which he left shows that he owned Standard Oil shares to the amount of $7,078,400; and Consolidated Tobacco shares to the amount $4,730,950. Altogether his stock holdings amounted to $17,208,000, and his entire fortune is listed at $21,243,100. No wonder he could afford to be bountiful. He gave $5,000 to have his little daughter christened; and he wore a $1,700 black pearl scarf pin. His income from monopolies was princely.

Interesting department news is made public each week, for however high the mercury climbs and wherever Cabinet Ministers may be taking an outing, the business of the executive branch of the government goes on forever. The Post Office department announces that the parcels post has been extended to China, and after August 1st., packages not exceeding $50 in value can be sent to far Cathay. The Navy department will soon accept bids for $1,000,000 worth of armor plate. The Government is now engaged in building more than thirty war ships. Secretary Metcalf has issued a "railroad accident bulletin," which shows that for the quarter ending the 31st of last March, 919 persons were killed on the railroads of this country, while 12,444 were injured. This is at the rate of nearly 150 for each day, an awful and appalling record. The damage to railroad property for the same period was $2,256,477. Secretary Shaw estimates the deficit in the U. S. Treasury for July at $21,000,000. He remarks that a couple of years ago he said a very high standard of business would be necessary to enable the present revenue laws to yield enough to meet the the large expenditures of the government. Like everything else business fluctuates; the lean years follow the fat. With the great demand Europe is sure to make for the coming American crops of staples, a larger exportation will take place in the autumn, with a correspondingly increased importation of old world goods, and a larger revenue from imposts.

HICKS ON THE WEATHER.

Promises for August are Given by the Famous Prognosticator.

According to the Weather Prophet Hicks the first five days of August will bring decided increase of storm conditions. A low barometer will pass eastward over the country, attended by great increase of warmth, all followed by great and blustering storm clouds. Heavy rains will visit sections covered by previous rains at this period. Change to much cooler will follow in the wake of these disturbances, progressively from west and north. Falling barometer, increase in temperature, cloudiness will be natural results on and touching the 8th and 9th.

The third storm period will be felt from the 11th quite up to the 16th. One of the heated terms of the summer is one of the things to be expected about this period. It will come in with high temperature. The warmth will increase and the barometer will fall as we advance into the period, and by the 14th may be expected wide areas of violent electrical storms in full sweep across the country from west to east. These storms will consume three or four days in making a transit of the country. They will be added with heavy hail in western and northwestern sections. Change to rising barometer and cooler will naturally come in behind these storms.

The fourth storm period is central on the 16th and 20th, being the beginning of the earth's autumnal equinox. Very high temperatures, low barometer and sultry, humid atmosphere will be natural at this period, and under such conditions intense electrical storms are very apt to occur. General thunder storms with phenomenal lightning, heavy gales and possible tornadoes, are among the results to be watched for over much of the interior country. A marked rise of the barometer and change to westerly winds and cooler will push the rear of these disturbances.

The fifth storm period extends from the 24th to the 28th. Very general and severe storms will visit the interior parts of the country. More rain will fall in many places than for weeks past. Tornadic storms in many localities. Change to very cool nights will follow these general perturbations, especially should heavy equinoctial storms visit the south coasts, and induce corresponding storms out of the northwest. In such event, even frost may follow to the north the last week in August along the high barometer that will succeed the storms.

The popular view of the relation of the blood to human character and conduct is marked in many a familiar expression. We speak of there being "bad blood" between people at enmity, of "blue blood" as indicating ancestry, of "black blood" as describing a treacherous nature, and in many another phrase mark our belief that in the mental, moral and physical man, 'the blood is the life." The one basis of a healthful, happy and useful life is pure blood. With the blood pure, disease has no permanent lodging place in the system For this reason the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery rids the body of diseases which have their origin in impurity of the blood. It absolutely purifies the blood, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter, increasing the action of the blood making glands, and building up the body by supplying the blood in quantity and quality such as is essential to a condition of health. It cures ninety-eight people out of every hundred who give it a fair trial.

DOWN THE PIKE AT ST. LOUIS.

Interesting Letter From Our Correspondent at the World's Fair.

To have visited the Fair and not have done the Pike, means that one has missed a great deal notwithstanding the fact that the Pike is the favorite retreat of the gushing school-girl and the extremely verdant young man, throngs of the well-educated visit it at night when the other buildings are closed, and think the time well-spent. For "A little laughter, now and then, is relished by the best of men," applies to World's Fair people as well as to others.

The Pike is certainly attractive with its throngs of foreigners in their native dress. A peep into the Tyrolean Alps with the peasants in their gay costumes, a pleasant half-hour in the theater of the Irish Village where the singing is of the best; a saunter through the streets of Cairo, and a ride upon that homely but very useful animal, the camel; a glimpse into Fair Japan with its pretty bright-eyed geisha girls; the snow-covered Esquimaux village with its inhabitants clothed in furs; and its little Esquimaux baby which is the pet of the Pike; and the home of the Cliff-dwellers of Mexico are all an education to one who has not had the opportunity of traveling through the many countries represented.

The most beautiful thing on the Pike and one worthy of description, is Roltaire's "Creation." The seven days in which God created the world are represented, the events of each day being shown. The earth even as a ball of fire moving through space, the water covering the earth, the separation of land and water, the making of the Sun and Moon and the formation of the clouds, all are very realistic. The seventh day on which God rested from his labor, is beautifully represented by artistic scenery and tableaux.

The Hereafter which is supposed to be our condition after death, has some good though very ghostly scenes. "The Galveston Flood" is a fine production. The city is represented before and after the tidal wave that brought sorrow and ruin to thousands. "From New York to the North Pole" is a very successful show, and one certainly enjoys the pleasant journey from the metropolis to the land of ice and snow.

Hagenbeck's exhibition of trained animals is an excellent one, and is always well patronized. It is worth going in just to to see the elephant shot the chutes, a feat that the performer seems to enjoy quite as much as the spectators.

A few of the minor attractions are the California Ostrich Farm; Jim Key, the educated horse that can solve problems and spell words given to him by the audience; A Southern Plantation before the War; and the Temple of Mirth that is the cause of many a hearty laugh.

Altough the Pike is crowded every moment of the time at night until it is closed, the crowd is good humored and well mannered, and a stroll up and down its brilliantly-lighted length at night is a pleasant close to a tiresome day.

The Pike is a great place. Don't miss it.

Pretty Wedding at State College.

Mrs. George X. Handlong and Miss Nannie Musser were married Wednesday morning, July 27th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Musser of State College. Rev. J. O. Dennison joined the young couple for life, using the ring ceremony. Miss Helen Musser, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. C. G. Stoll of Chicago was the best man. The bride wore a gown of white silk covered with point d'esprit and carried "bride" roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in white mull and had a bouquet of sweet peas. With the groom and his next friend in conventional dress and the house nicely decorated with flowering plants, ferns and daisies, the wedding scene was a picture long to be remembered by those who saw it.

The groom, Mr. George Handlong, is a graduate of The Pennsylvania State College, class of 1902, and is employed by the New York Edison Company. The bride is a winsome young lady and will make a good wife.

THE NEW ROADS LAW.

Some Changes to the Present Statue are Contemplated.

There important changes in the road laws of the state are planned by Senator Algernon B. Roberts, of Montgomery county, who did much to have present statues relative to the improvement and maintenance of the public highways adopted by the last legislature. These changes will provide for helping those who are willing to help themselves in a greater measure than is possible under the law as it now stands. The initial move in the matter was taken recently, when the republicans of Montgomery county in a convention adopted a resolution urging a change in the laws now in force.

Senator Roberts intends to introduce amendments which will make it possible to have the money not used by a county within a year transferred to the fund set aside to the credit of other counties which are more active in the construction of good roads. He also intends to introduce an amendment giving the township and state highway department officers power to select the roads to be improved and maintained. At present there are only three persons in the state department to look after roads, and Senator Roberts thinks the force entirely inadequate for the work expected of it. The legislature appropriated $6,500,000 for improvements of highways within the six years. The supervision of such an amount cannot be properly looked after with such a force, it is declared.

In a statement submitted to the governor by State Highway Commissioner Hunter a few days ago, it is shown that Huntingdon county has completed 2,800 feet of new road. Under construction, Crawford county has 7708 feet; Snyder 2500; Clinton 1935; Northampton, 1329; Lawrence, 2700; and Bucks, 13,650. Beaver county has 11,847 feet under contract and Northumberland county has 10,560 feet. Bids have been received for 43,232 feet in Lackawanna, Chester and Montour counties. The following counties have advertised for bids for work: Bucks, 14,319; Montgomery, 14,400; Clearfield, 2,141; Delaware, 3,580; Chester, 1,700; Lehigh, 11,446 and Huntingdon 10,500.

Applications have been received from various counties for more than 209 miles of reconstruction, and the officers of the state highway department are more than gratified with the work under way. Montgomery has about eight miles of new roads under construction and has applied for about twenty miles more. Senator Roberts thinks the next legislature will make the amendments suggested, and within the next five years more than a thousand miles of new roads will be constructed.

A Red Letter Day for Squire Keichline.

Thursday was a red letter day for John M. Keichline by reason of the number of law suits tried before his Honor. It seems the Quaker City Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, began business in Centre County sometime about 1896. A large number of persons were induced to take out policies in the aforesaid company. After doing business for a while the company suddenly collapsed going into the hands of a Receiver. An assessment was ordered to pay the old indebtedness, the office holders and the receiver. About thirty suits were instituted and all heard Thursday. W. S. Heidinger a lawyer from Philadelphia represented the company and receiver. Quite an array of lawyers represented the policy holders, among whom were noticed: Clement Dale, J. K. Johnston, W. F. Reeder, John Blanchard, Harry Keller, W. G. Runkle, Ellis L. Orvis and W. C. Heinle. The crowd that gathered in the Justice's office became to great so that official adjourned to the Court Room where evidence was taken. After hearing the evidence and the arguments the Justice reserved his decision until August 3 when he will hand it down.

Concert and Dance Postponed.

On Friday, August 5th, the Logan Fire Co., will hold their picnic at Hecla Park and in view of this the usual Friday afternoon and evening concert and dance will be abandoned for that date. NEFF FAMILY RE-UNION.

Four Generations of This Family Gather at Howard.

The W. H. Neff family representing four generations, met at the home of William H. Neff and wife Wednesday, July 20, and held a family reunion. There were forty of the generation present beside several guests. The day was one long to be remembered by all, and was spent in social chat of events that happened long ago. The ladies had prepared plenty of the good things for the inner man, to which all did justice. Joseph Weirick took several photographs during the afternoon so that all might have something to remember the occasion. William H. Neff, our subject, was born one and one half miles west of Howard, January 19, 1832, making him almost 73 years of age. He is the father of eleven children seven of whom are living. He lived on the farm until 17 years of age when he commenced learning the cabinet making and undertaking business at Nittany Hall and Bellefonte. He was married in 1852 to Sarah E. Harlen, of Jersey Shore, who died March 14 1864; to this union the following children were born; William N. Williamsport, Franklin deceased, Bennie deceased, Jennie of Howard, Charles of Castanea, and Clara of Howard. On November 22, 1865, he was married the second time to Miss Maragaret A. Thompson of near Howard, and to their union was born the following children: John deceased, Henry Edward, of Chicago, Robert of Tyrone, and Mary deceased, Lot H. Neff, who resides at home. During his life and up to the present time, Mr. Neff has buried over two thousand people.

He was a veteran of the Civil war, enlisting February 1861 in Co A 45 regiment P. V. and served until the war closed: during that time he served as prisoner in Libby and Salisberry prison. His oldest child is 51 and the youngest 31 years of age. During the exercises in the afternoon, Rev. Aller, his pastor, and William M. Long of W Va., made appropriate addresses. Those of the family present from a distance were; Edward Neff and son of Chicago, W. N. Neff, wife and son Merrill and Mrs. M. Gouse of Williamsport, Charles Neff, wife and son of Castanea, R. M. Neff, wife and children of Tyrone, A. B. Weirick and wife of Altoona and Harry of Rossetter, Pa.

Luther League Convention.

The eighth annual convention of the Central District Lutheran League met in the Lutheran church, Centre Hall last week. This body covers the counties of Union, Clinton and Centre. The convention failed to meet during the two years last passed, which makes this a gathering of particular interest.

The Monday afternoon session was dispensed with the first session held being in the evening. At this session the principal speaker was Rev. C. L. McConnell, of Mifflinburg. His subject was "The Lutheran Church and Her Young People." The Lutheran in this synod knows that when Rev. McConnell speaks, he has something of interest for his hearers, and his talk Monday evening was no exception to the rule. After speaking of the origin, the name, the method, the faith of the church, the speaker took up the second part of his subject, her young people. The one object of the Luther League is instruction —entertainment has no part in it, said Rev. McConnell. He spoke at some length of the style of music used in the average League, Sunday School and Lutheran church choir. It can easily be guessed that a man as thoroughly, intensely Lutheran as the speaker would advocate the use of sacred hymns in religious services and the omission of the "jingo" style of music. As a consequence the doxology was sung for the first time in the Lutheran church at Centre Hall for a year or more.

The session Tuesday morning was along the lines of the program.

In the absence of Rev. J. I. Stonecypher, the topic "Wherein does the success of the young people's societies consist" was discussed by Rev. McConnell. His talk was followed by a general discussion.

The second topic discussed was "How can prayer be introduced into young people's societies." The first speaker was Rev. B. B. Uhl, of Salona, who rightly contended that when the Lutheran is properly catechized he is taught to pray.

Dr. Hasskarl devoted some time to pointing out the ridiculous features of prayers made by those termed "the good, praying brother."

"The proper place and work for women in our young people's societies" was the topic ably dispensed by Dr. G. C. H. Hasskarl, of Logan ton. He defined the position of the Lutheran church on the subject by saying that a woman is permitted to perform all functions delegated to the male except to fill the office of the ministry and dispense the sacraments.

The meetings Tuesday afternoon and evening were of particular interest, although the principal speakers were substitutes for those on the program.

The place selected for next year's convention is Rebersburg. The present chairman, Rev. D. E. Rupley, of Lock Haven, was re-elected

The Eagle on the Coin.

If you have a silver dollar of 1836, 1838 or 1839, or one of the first nickle, cents coined in 1856, you will find upon it true portrait of an American eagle which was for many years a familiar sight in the streets of Philadelphia. Peter, one of the finest eagles ever captured alive was the pet of the Philadelphia mint, and was generally known as the "Mint Bird." Not only did he have free access to every part of the Mint, going without hindrance into the treasure-vaults, where even the treasurer of the United States would not go alone, but used his own pleasure in going about the city, flying over the houses, sometimes perching on the lamp-posts in the streets.

Everybody knew him, and admired him, and even the street boys treated him with respect. The government provided his daily fare, and he was as much a part of the mint establishment as the superintendent or chief coiner. He was so kindly treated that he had no fear of anybody or anything. And he might be in the mint yet, if he had not sat down to rest on one of the great fly-wheels. The wheel started without warning, and Peter was caught in the machinery. One of his wings was broken, and he died in a few days.

The superintendent had his body beautifully mounted, with the wings spread to their fullest extent; and to this day Peter stands in a glass case to the mint's cabinet, where you may see him whenever you go there. An exact portrait of him as he now stands in the case, was put upon the coins named.

A duty all people owe themselves that they may live long and prosper is to take a certain amount of recreation. Brain-workers especially owe this to themselves. Their work is laborious and monotonous, and they should seek some means to have a change for a week or two at least, in some manner which is entirely different to what they see around them. The least expensive and most enjoyable we can recommend is a water trip.

ROOSEVELT NOTIFIED

He Now Knows Officially That He Was Nominated for President.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., July 28.—President Roosevelt was notified formally Wednesday of his nomination for the presidency by the republican, national convention. The ceremony took place at his country home at Sagamore Hill, three miles from this village. In accordance with the wish of the president, the ceremony was made as simple as possible.

The formal notification of the action of the convention was made on behalf of a committee respresenting every state and territory in the United States by Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives.

The day opened with ideal weather and arrangements for the ceremony were completed at an early hour. The wide veranda of the house at Sagamore Hill, extending almost entirely around the house, was decorated with American flags hung from pillar to pillar. In addition many houses in the neighborhood of the Roosevelt home and in Oyster Bay were draped with the national colors. Across the main street of village there hung a large Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner.

The special train bearing the members of the notification committee and the invited guests left Long Island at 10:22 a. m., and arrived here at 11:35 o'clock. Only three of the members of the committee were absent. They were James N. Coombs, of Florida; Senator Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, who is in Europe, and Senator Clarence D. Clark, of Wyoming.

Included among the invited guests were men prominent in all the walks of life. Among them were the personal and political friends of the president in New York state, lifelong friends and neighbors on Long Island including the pastors of the Oyster Bay churches and the officials of the national and New York state republican organizations. Those present numbered about 125. It was necessary to limit the number on account of the isolation of Sagamore Hill and the lack of facilities for the accommodation of a larger assemblage.

On arrival at Sagamore Hill, the committeemen were received by President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and National Chairman George B. Cortelyou.

All of the house guests of the president were gathered on the veranda and as the occupants of each carriage alighted they were welcomed by the president and each was presented to Mrs. Roosevelt.

At the conclusion of the informal reception the ceremony of notification began. The members of the family, the house guests and the visitors were assembled on the veranda.

When Speaker Cannon rose to deliver his speech of notification he was greeted with applause, which was re-doubled as the president advanced to the veranda railing. Standing on a chair, so that all could hear, he delivered his address in response to the notification. He was warmly applauded at the conclusion.

Following the address President Roosevelt held an informal reception and received the congratulations of the committee on his speech.

Among the invited guests were Chairman George B. Cortelyou, Governor B. B. Odell, Senator John Kean, of New Jersey, former Secretary Elihu Root, Cornelius N. Bliss and former Governor Frank S. Black

—"The Filigree Ball."

In Odd Hours.

Every hour that we are awake our minds are busy. They work without rest of respite. We could not prevent them from working. The only way to make them stop is to go to sleep, and even then they often persist in spite of us in working more widely even than when awake. Yet most of this work is done without any guidance or ruling principle. Part of the day we have work for our minds which keeps them employed and under decipline; but this is the lesser part of the day, and even when our duties fill up the whole day, they are usually of such a character that we can perform them while our minds are more or less free to go where they will.

Perhaps this dissoluteness of thinking is one reason why so few people are capable of reasoning out a problem which presents itself, or of carrying on a connected and continuous discussion. We jump in our thought and speech from point to point or from subject to subject, and scarcely continue for ten minutes on any one line. Such carelessness of thought when our minds wander about where they will, has a real effect on character. Where the mind is unguided and released from discipline, it is too prone to wander where it ought not to go. Into the heart unoccupied with useful meditation or service, the evil spirit is eager to come bringing other evil spirits with him.

What many of us need is to have our minds filled with useful thoughts in these free hours. Then when the pressure of duty is released, when we go from one task to another, as we are walking upon the street, or sit in the railroad trains, as we drive or wait, let us keep our minds employed upon good things.—Forward.

Larger Sleeping Car Berths.

One of the few railroad companies that owns and operates the sleeping cars in service on its lines, is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

The sleeping cars on this line were formerly Pullman cars, operated by the Pullman Company, out for a dozen years past the railway company has owned and operated the sleeping car equipment. In building its sleeping cars, a departure from the old standard pattern of cars has been made to the extent of adding about six inches to the width and height of the sleepers. This permits of wider and higher berths. Length has also been added to berths, so that comfort is found in them which is lacking in ordinary sleeping cars.

These large cars are in service on practically all of the lines of the St. Paul Road, and are very popular with the traveling public.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life.

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives.

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions.

One means of a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the Republican

Job Printing Department.

JUST IN TIME.

A motorman in Chicago ran his car onto the approach of an open bridge but stopped it with the fender actually overhanging the gulf below. He wouldn't want to repeat the experiment because the chances are that he'd never again have the same good fortune.

Once in a while some one who has traveled to the very edge of the danger line of stomach disease stops just in time to save his health. But the majority of people go across the line, and slight symptoms of indigestion grow to disease of the stomach, involving the other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Indigestion and other forms of stomach "trouble" are perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the whole body by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"I have been suffering for about eight years," writes Mrs. H. Pierce, of Millsprings, Ky. "Have had several doctors to treat me—some for female weakness and others for stomach trouble, but received no relief. When I wrote you for advice I was hardly able to work, and you advised me what to do. I took nine bottles, five of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' four of 'Favorite Prescription,' also two vials of the 'Pellets.' Dr. Pierce's medicines will do all that you claim for them. Believe I would have been in my grave if I had not taken them."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

RUSSIAN MINISTER KILLED.

Bomb Thrower Takes the Life of Von Plehve.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—M. Von Plehve, Minister of the Interior, was assassinated at 9:50 o'clock Thursday morning by a bomb thrown at his carriage while he was driving to the Baltic station to take the train for the palace at Peterhof, where he was to make his weekly report to the Emperor.

A WIDESPREAD PLOT.

The assassination is believed to be the outcome of a widespread plot, the existence of which had been suspected for several days. Numerous arrests have already been made, including that of the assassin, a young man who is known to be a Finn named Leglo, and who is now in a hospital severely and perhaps fatally injured by the explosion of his own bomb. An accomplice of Leglo, also apparently a Finn but whose name is unknown, was arrested. He had in his possession a bomb which he tried to throw, but he was overpowered by the police just in time to prevent great loss of life.

THROWN FROM SIDEWALK.

The assassin wore a brown overcoat and a railroad official's cap. He stood on the sidewalk just as Minister Von Plehve's carriage was about to cross the canal bridge near the station. The Minister was escorted by a number of detectives on bicycles and one of them jostled the assassin, who then rushed into the road and threw the bomb after the carriage. The missile struck the hind wheel and exploded with fearful force, killing or wounding over a score of persons.

Minister Von Plehve and his coachman were killed outright, and an officer of the guard was fatally injured.

THE ASSASSIN ARRESTED.

One of the cyclist detectives arrested the assassin, who endeavored to escape though wounded by splinters in the face arm and abdomen. He made no attempt at resistance, however, when seized by the detective and confessed his crime, but refused to give his name.

The police immediately after the explosion arrested a suspicious individual who took refuge in a hotel opposite the scene of the tragedy. He carried a bomb similar to that thrown by Leglo. As soon as the police saw the bomb they scattered but an employe of the hotel rushed up behind the accomplice and pinned his arms.

THE EXPLOSION TERRIFIC

The explosive is believed to have been composed of pyroxylin, as it gave off little smoke. The force of the explosion was so terrific that it not only broke every window within a radius of half a mile, but reduced the heavy paving stones to powder, heaved up the pavement and flung a heavy piece of the iron work of the carriage across the canal, severing the thick mast of a barge which fell, stunning the captain of the barge. Everybody in the street was knocked down and more or less bruised.

A SOLEMN REQUIEM.

When the officers of the law, headed by Minister of Justice Muravieff, had terminated the necessary formalities by drawing up a written report of the crime, the mangled remains of the Minister of the Interior were conveyed to a humble chapel adjoining the station, the windows of which miraculously escaped destruction. The priests and people, with characteristic Russian piety, at once joined in a solemn requiem. The square in front of the station was filled with a reverent crowd of peasants and laborers, and the busy hum of traffic was silenced. A priest lifted up his voice and proclaimed "The eternal memory of the departed servant Wenceslas," while all those in the congregation dropped to their knees.

AT THE MINISTER'S RESIDENCE.

A no less impressive service was conducted at the Minister's stately residence Thursday evening, to which only intimate friends were invited by M. Von Plehve's assistant, M. Durnovo, who is temporarily in charge of the Ministry of the Interior. The magnificent staircase and the reception rooms were draped in black. The body, of the Minister was covered by a white shroud which concealed the ghastly mutilations. It reposed in a black and silver casket in a corner of the vast hall surrounded by luxuriant palms. Gendarmes and non-commissioned officers stood sentinel at the head of the casket, while at its foot were two high officials of the ministry.

Three physicians failed to help me and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured."

The Engineering Magazine,

The Engineering Magazine for August maintains its full standard of interest and importance, without any sign of that temptation to relax which sometimes is supposed to invade the magazine world in the summer months. The leading article is by General H. L. Abbot, the greatest authority in the world upon the climate and rainfall of the Isthmus of Panama and their influence on the plans for the Panama Canal. He gives a concise statement of the data which are the key to the problem of building the waterway. Paul Moller follows with an illustrated description of the Berlin combined elevated and under-ground railway, specially pertinent in view of the approaching opening of the New York underground. Mr. Robert McF. Doble has an account, also finely illustrated, of a great 100-miles 60,000-volt electric power transmission from a Mexican water to the Guanajuato mines. Two other illustrated features are the papers on tool-room practice by John Ashford, the noted British expert, and on the manufacture of iron by electro-chemical processes, by M. Adolphe Minet. There is further a very effective discussion of the organizing of a modern sales department by Russell M. Seeds, and an almost sensational arraignment of the bad engineering done by architects and construction companies, this last-named contribution being from Mr. Reginald Pelham Bolton.

The number carries the usual twenty-four pages of Review of the Engineering Press, the Index to the World's engineering periodicals, and the department of book reviews.—The Engineering Magazine, New York.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—A little German band enlivened the town with their music on Tuesday.

—Mrs. George Weaver, of Philipsburg, was brought to Bellefonte Tuesday night suffering with blood poison and taken to the Bellefonte Hospital.

— Misses Eliza Short, Sara Potter and Lillian Muffly and Messrs. Arthur McNeil, Fred Larimer, John Munson and Harold Lingle spent Wednesday evening at the Nittany Country Club at Hecla Park.

—The Huntingdon Monitor, which ceased publication in February, resumed Thursday of last week. The Journal, operated since last winter by H. E. Kirk has suspended for the time being.

—Harold Lingle gave a dinner Friday evening at the Nittany Country Club in honor of Miss Eliza Marion Short, of Milford, Delaware. There were ten in attendance and the occasion proved most delightful.

—Last week the insurance adjusters awarded the Bellefonte Academy $3,890 35 for the damages by fire and it will be accepted. The trustees will have the third story remodeled and enlarged and other parts of the building improved, and feel confident that it will be ready for occupancy by October 1st.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Wetzel, of Bellefonte arrived here Tuesday evening on a visit to their son, L. C. Wetzel. Mr. W. has been a resident of Bellefonte 57 years, but this is his likewise his wife's first visit to Philipsburg. He is naturally surprised to find that we have such a pretty and progressive town.—Philipsburg Journal.

—A. A. Stevens Esq., of Tyrone, has been selected to fill the vacancy on the state Prohibition ticket created by the withdrawal of Lee M. Grumbine, of Lebanon, for Supreme Court Justice. This action was taken at a meeting of the State Executive committee held at Harrisburg on Tuesday.

—Near Bellefonte J. R. Mirt recently picked up a land turtle with the initials of his grandfather and the date 1851 carved on the shell. The grandfather, who is now 85 years old, remembers carving the inscription on the turtle, and says it was found within 200 yards of where he picked it up more than half a century ago.

—Samuel James Packer Esq., president of the First National Bank of Sunbury, died at his home in Sunbury Saturday July 23 of valvular disease of the heart. He dropped dead in his bath room about 7 a. m. while dressing. He was born in Sunbury June 19th 1831. Years ago he learned the printing trade in Bellefonte and was a self made man. He was one of Sunbury's leading citizens. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon July 26.

—Miss Keturah Rider entertained a party of friends Friday evening at her home in Bushs' Addition in honor of James McKee, of Pittsburg, who is visiting friends in this vicinity. The young people all report having a good time. The guessing contest was very interesting, James McKee taking the first prize and George Wagner the booby prize. During the evening choice refreshments were served including ice cream, cake, fruit etc.

—Rev. Sylvester Beach of Paris, France, will preach in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning at 10:30. There are two thousands American Students in Paris and every Sunday evening Rev. Beach preaches to them in the Latin quarter. He was appointed by the General Assembly as a delegate to the Conference to be held in England and came on to this country. His subjest tomorrow morning will be "The Present Crisis in France."

—A new potato worm, which is said to be in a fair way to annoy the farmers as much as the celebrated Colorado beetle, has just made its appearance in different parts of the State. The worm is about an inch in length, of brown or blackish gray, with hard yellow head, a dark saddle, and stripes longitudinally toward the tail. He bores into the stalk near the ground and works his way upward, the stalk falling over as he weakens it by his boring.

—Another lot of fishermen from the vicinity of Blanchard were before Justice Keichline last week, arrested for setting nets in Beech Creek, one man was fined $25 and costs. The others were discharged as there was no evidence against them. The fish warden reports that a great deal of illegal fishing has been practiced in that section, and that more are liable to be in the toils of the law. Prosecutions will also be made in other parts of the county.

—James McClure received something over $200 insurance for damage to his restaurant building on Bishop street by the fire on Wednesday evening of last week.

—Rev. Sylvester Beach whose work among American residents of Paris and the American Art students of the Latin quarters, has been very interesting and successful, addressed a meeting in the Presbyterian Chapel Wednesday evening.

—Col. Edward R. Chambers as a member of the Governor's staff has received an invitation for himself and wife to accompany the Pennsylvania Commission to St. Louis to attend the Pennsylvania day exercises August 20. They will leave Philadelphia August 17 returning August 23.

—The Mann Edge Tool company of Mill Hall gave notice last week that until the business conditions as regards the axe market improve, they will be necessitated to operate their plant about two thirds time; also reduce the force of workmen about one half in each of the several departments. A lack of orders is the cause for this decline in the operation of this usually busy plant.

—This town has some unruly street runners in the shape of boys who annoy citizens, enter their premises, pilfer fruit, trample down plants and do other annoying acts. We hear frequent complaint against these youngsters; they are taking their first lessons that lead to prison. Parents should keep stricter watch and admonition over these pests, and save them from a worse career.

—Landlord H. S. Ray is the owner of a fine two seated Oldsmobile, which he purchased in Schenectady, N. Y., last week. He made the trip overland 250 miles to Bellefonte, but had a mishap near Jersey Shore, by colliding with a lumberwagon, resulting in the front of his auto being slightly disfigured, but still able to navigate. Since home the electrical connections went wrong and the vehicle is out of commission for the present.

—Charles Hardy, aged 21 years whose residence is at Tyrone, was arrested Monday morning at Philipsburg by Officer Harry Simler charged with having on Saturday afternoon at the Potter House, Philipsburg, taken a gold watch and two ten dollar bills from Thomas Gilson, of Sandy Ridge. He was given a hearing before C. B. Sandford, Esq., and in default of $800 bail, was brought to Bellefonte Tuesday afternoon and lodged in jail.

—The report of wardens of Pennsylvania presented by Mr. Meehan shows that 457 persons had been arrested for breaking the fish and game laws, of whom 317 were convicted. The fines imposed aggregated $12,780, of which $9000 was collected, and of this amount 15 per cent. went to the commission to swell the fund of $15,000 given by the Legislature. Centre county has contributed a nice sum to this fund, as we have an energetic fish warden in Bellefonte.

—Harry Hassinger, who works for the American Lime & Stone Company, killed a black snake Thursday, that measured 11 feet 7 inches in length. Harry was walking along accompanied by his dog when the latter saw the snake and chased it, until the snake ran into a stone pile. Just as it was disappearing among the rocks the dog grabbed it by the tail and pulled it out when Hassinger quickly dispatched it with a stone. This is a snake story that is all to the good.

—One day last week the Rev. Prof. James P. Hughes, of Academy fame, in driving from Bellefonte to this place, stopped at the watering trough in front of Will Alexander's residence, got off the buggy, unreined the horse so he could drink o. k. and held on to the hitching strap. Just then Mrs. Alexander came down to have a friendly chat, knowing the Professor's fondness for wagging his chin. Several scape of bees were inside the yard fence and the Prof. and Mrs. A. had talked but a few moments when, by order of the queen, no doubt, a large detachment of sharp-shooters made an onslaught on man and beast, stung the horse on the head and neck without mercy. The horse at once began to rear and plunge in his effort to get away from the bees and the Prof. but, do you know Charley, that 75 year old kid hung on to that bridle rein as if it had been the antlers of a four-pronged buck or the tail of a red fox until he was dragged 15 or 20 rods from the place of the onslaught. The horse jammed him up against the post and rail fence, a rail caught his watch chain and his watch was thrown over the fence into the field, but finally he got the horse subdued and coaxed and patted him into submission. He then tied him to the fence, went back and after an hour's search, found his valuable watch in the grass, ticking away as if nothing had happened. The Prof. came out of the fray with one bayonet jab in the neck. He never stopped to look after the dead and wounded, but went on his way rejoicing that he got off so easy—if his confab with Mrs. A. was cut short.—Unionville Cor. to Democrat.

MURDER AT PORTAGE!

Paymaster Campbell Injured and Driver Hayes Killed Saturday.

A daring piece of highway robbery, in which Charles Hayes lost his life and Paymaster Patrick Campbell, of the Puritan Coal Company was so seriously injured that he will perhaps die, took place Saturday near Portage, a small mining town located in Cambria county,. As a result of the killing and robbery the entire populace is up in arms and if the murderers are captured there is every likelihood that they will be hung up to the nearest tree.

Patrick Campbell is the Paymaster of the Puritan Coal Co., and he was driving from Portage to one of the neighboring mining settlements with the money, which he had taken from the express office, for the purpose of paying the men. Charles Hays was driving the team for him at the time and the paymaster sat on the left side of the buggy with the satchel containing $2,965 in money between them.

The story that Campbell, who was so seriously injured that he was taken to the hospital and will probably die, tells of the affair is that they were driving along not thinking anything unusual was about to happen. In an instant he saw a flash come from the woods and heard the report of the gun. He remembers also that three men then came to the wagon and took the bag containing the money with which it was intended to pay the men. He could not identify the men, but he says that they were foreigners and that they disappeared in the woods from which he saw the flash. Hays, the driver, was shot and instantly killed.

Paymaster Campbell says that he fell from the buggy and that he realized that he had been injured. He took a milage book from his pocket and commenced to write a letter to his wife, but before he had it completed he became unconscious.

The people are up in arms and if the murderers are captured it will not be well for them. Both of the men were married, Hayes living at Portage, where his funeral occurred Tuesday.

—George R. Meek, the genial associate editor of the Democratic Watchman, has accepted the position in the Centre County Bank made vacant by the resignation of J. Malcolm Laurie and assumed the duties of his new position Monday morning. We cannot see why so versatile and successful a newspaper man as Mr. Meek should want to take up any other vocation, but stranger things than that have happened, and we certainly hope that he has not made a mistake and that he will meet with all kinds of success in his new position. It is said that he will still be connected with the Watchman and will divide his efforts between the two places. The Centre County Bank is to be congratulated on securing such an honest, upright and excellent young man as George R. Meek, and we have such confidence in him, that we feel sure he can fill successfully any position the Centre County Bank cares to place him in.

—Rev. Ambrose Schmidt will preach a sermon in the Reformed church on Sunday evening especially to the young men of his congregation.

EX-GOVERNOR PATTISON DEAD.

The Man Who was Twice Democratic Governor of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 2.—Robert E. Pattison, twice Democratic Governor of Pennsylvania and twice controller of Philadelphia, died early yesterday morning at his home in Overbrook, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Although pneumonia was the immediate cause of death, Mr. Pattison was indirectly a victim of overwork in connection with the recent democratic national convention.

He returned here with broken health and shattered nerves. He is said to have done the work of at least five men as a member of the special sub committee that drafted the platform.

It is known that for nineteen hours without sleep and with only meagre luncheon he sat up all night and the best part of the following day working on the platform.

The ex-governor was a giant in stature and of powerful physique. There is no doubt that had his system not been run down so seriously pneumonia would not have secured a fatal hold upon him.

Last Friday pneumonia developed and heart complications aggravated Mr. Pattison's illness. Sunday his condition was encouraging, but late that night he collapsed. Saline injections were resorted to, but the patient sank rapidly and died shortly after 6 o'clock Monday morning.

Arrangements have been made for the funeral to take place Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Services will be conducted at the family residence, Overbrook, by Bishop Thomas B. Neely and Rev. O. W. Iser, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of the Covenant, which Mr. Pattison attended. The interment will be in West Laurel Hill cemetery. The funeral will be private and of a simple character. Telegrams of condolence poured in from all parts of the state and the family received others from distant points beyond the state borders. Among the first received was one from Judge Parker, democratic candidate for president. Judge Parker expressed profound regret and extended a message of condolence to the widow and family. Another was received from Geo. W. Guthrie, who was Mr. Pattison's mate on the democratic ticket of 1902. A message of condolence was received from Colonel James M. Guffey, while ex-Governor Stone also expressed his sorrow and extended sympathy to the family.

Death of Mrs. Bridget A. Nolan.

Mrs. Bridget A. Nolan, of Washington, D. C., passed away at her home on Sunday morning July 31. Her death was due to old age she having passed the 80th milestone in life's journey. She was born in Ireland.

The remains were brought to Bellefonte Monday morning and taken to the home of her nephew T. R. Hamilton on Howard street. The funeral took place on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the St. John's Catholic church. Interment in the Catholic cemetery.

The Board of directors of The Penna. Telephone Co. at a meeting held July 27, 1904, declared the regular quarterly dividend No. 82 of 1¼ per cent. payable Aug. 1, 1904, to stock holders on record of July, 30, 1904.

LOOKING FOR MURDERERS.

Deputy Sheriff Cornelly Scouting for Men who Killed Condo.

Tuesday morning's DuBois Journal contains the following:

Deputy Sheriff James Cornelly, of Bellefonte was in this city last night being on the track of the five prisoners who murdered Turnkey Condo last Friday night and made their escape from the jail in that town.

Sheriff Cornelly says that there were some errors in the published accounts of the manner in which the men made their escape. At the time they were not running free in the jail, but were locked in the steel cage of the prison.

The turnkey had entered the jail when he was set upon by the prisoners and beaten into insensibility and he died on Sunday morning from the effects of the wounds he received. The men then took the keys from the unconscious turnkey and had no further trouble in getting their freedom.

The manner in which the escaped prisioners succeeded in getting from their cells was by filling the rivets from the door of the cell. They made a saw of a butcher's knife and with a bar taken from the bed succeeded in prying the door from the hinges.

There has been no clues that would lead to locating the escape murderers and so the Deputy Sheriff has been compelled to follow his instinct as much as anything else.

He left Bellefonte and went to Tyrone and from there he went to Osceola Mills, to Philipsburg and Clearfield and came over on the Clearfield train last night. In all of his travels so far he has not been able to find the slightest clue that would lead to locating the escaped murderers. It is his opinion, however, that they are keeping in close hiding in the woods and that they will appear within the next few days. He would not be surprised to find them in this section of the country.

Mr. Cornelly, who is here in the interests of the officials of Centre county with the authority of a deputy sheriff, is looked upon as a terror to evil doers, and it is thought if it is possible to chase the men to earth he will prove to be the right man to do it.

Death at an Advanced Age.

Catharine Hunter, a maiden lady, and one of Philipsburg oldest and most highly respected citizens, died on Saturday afternoon at the residence of D. W. Holt, where she has made her home for the past twenty-eight years. Her death was the result of the infirmities of age. Sunday a week ago she went to the residence of John Ardell to spend a few days, and came home Tuesday feeling unwell. She grew weaker right along until death came to her relief on Saturday at 1:15 p. m.

The deceased was born at Buffalo Run, this county, on October 16, 1819, and was therefor aged 84 years, 8 months and 14 days. She was an aunt of the late Mrs. D. W. Holt, with whom she so long made her home, and is the last of several brothers and sisters, these having preceded her to the grave years ago. She was a devoted member of St. Paul's P. E. church, and a lady whose pleasing qualities made her many friends.

The funeral took place from the Holt residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
